Re: Senior Health Data Analyst

Dear Hiring Panel,

I am applying for the Senior Health Data Analyst role. Your focus on practical, trustworthy reporting for clinical teams matches the work I have led across community health and hospital outreach services. I would bring strong SQL and Python skills, careful data governance, and a habit of explaining what a measure can and cannot support.

At Harbour Health Network, I led reporting for 18 community clinics and three outreach teams. I worked with nurses and service managers to agree on definitions before building dashboards, then paired each measure with quality checks and plain-language caveats. Rebuilding the patient-flow pipeline cut manual reconciliation from two days to three hours per reporting cycle. The improvement mattered because clinicians could spend the saved time reviewing unusual patterns rather than assembling spreadsheets.

Earlier, I evaluated a regional telehealth pilot and prepared reproducible analyses for clinical leads. I reported denominators and uncertainty alongside the headline findings, and I worked with privacy colleagues to move sensitive extracts into approved access-controlled tools. Those experiences taught me to treat accuracy, accessibility, and trust as part of the same job.

I would welcome the chance to discuss how I could support North Coast Health Network's reporting and evaluation work. Thank you for considering my application.

Kind regards,
Avery Chen
